To the friends of freedom in the United States -
Dear Friends -

At a late meeting of the American Society in Philad^a a committee was appointed to mature a plan of action for the relief of its treasury from debt, & the restoration of its affairs to a sound financial condition. Their report, signed by Sidney Howard Gay, Chairmⁿ, has already been published in the Standard. It shows the injustice of continuing our operations at the expense of those to whom our obligations are due. We commend it to the attentive perusal of every member & friend of the Am^a Socy.

In furtherance of that report, this circular is addressed to the friends of freedom throughout the country, with earnest solicitation, for their active cooperation in the measure now proposed.

Our operations have been, & continue to be sustained, only by one member of the Executive Committee pledging himself personally for the principal liabilities incurred. The Society has uniformly & unanimously voted that its exertions should be continued. — The time has arrived when those exertions must be sustained by the body of its friends, or they must cease. The responsibility so long imposed on an individual, ought to cease. If abolitionists think it of importance to have the Society, its office, & its press preserved, they must come to the rescue; or, if they do not desire this, but simply to be just & pay the debts already contracted by their own authority, they cannot & must not hesitate for a moment to raise the sum required to overcome the present emergency. Five Thousand dollars will relieve us of all our debt, & carry us through the year. If the Society could have now, an annual income equal to the contribution of single states to its treasury, in former years, its affairs would be placed in a most happy & triumphant posture. Its debt is Two Thousand seven hundred dollars, besides Twelve hundred dollars for unadjusted claims of old agencies - total, Thirty Nine hundred dollars. There never was more need of unfaltering & energetic effort than at this moment. The important breach which has lately been made in the enemy's first line of defense, affords new & animating hope, & should excite us to corresponding action. We must press vigorously onward. Shall the means be forthcoming? Shall the laborer be paid the wages he has already earned, trusting to the justice of abolitionists, or, will they imitate slaveholders & leave his labor unrequited!

The measures now in force by the Am^r Society are such as should command support without respect of party, sect, or section. They are necessarily conducted on a very limited scale compared with past years. The Ex: Committee, had they been governed by the expression of the Society at its several last Annual Meetings, might have greatly extended their operations; but a just regard for obligations already incurred, & the certainty that such extension would involve the Society in overwhelming embarrassments, appears to them good ground for pursuing their present course. Their efforts are strenuously exerted to prevent the increase of debt; but they cannot do even this, without speedy & effectual aid. It is necessary that we should act in concert. If each will do what lies in his power, we are confident that this attempt to raise funds will succeed. Let there be no waiting, one for another, but let every individual to whom this circular may be sent, begin immediately to solicit contributions; or, let committees be appointed, in populous districts, to enter vigorously into the plan. Nothing short of this prompt action can enable us to continue our operations, or redeem us from the discredit & disgrace of withholding the wages of the laborer.

We shall hope to receive, by mail or otherwise, such collections as you may succeed in obtaining by the 10th of February - ; but let not your efforts cease with a single remittance - we entreat you in the name of justice, to persevere - follow up the measures with diligence & remit to us, for the payment of your own debts, until the last farthing is honestly paid.

Enclose to "Isaac T. Hopper, Treasurer, No 143 Nassau St. New York."

My Dear friend

The foregoing circular is commended to thy charge with earnest hopes of thy ability to do something effectual towards relieving us. If our friends will each do, what they can, this measure will not fail. However small, let each do all that lies in his power.

Nothing new in these parts worthy of notice. That harlequin George F. White preached at Philad a month ago, & a stenographer reported & published his discourse. Some days since a "corrected copy" was published in this city by George & his friends, with material departures from the truth. But even his own "corrected copy" is enough to condemn him. Can it be possible that Providence, seeing that men will not be cured of their idolatry of self, by reason & common sense, is making use of this man to work out the end, by bringing sect into such disrepute that it will finally be given up in disgust! Providence does some things of this kind. If people will not be persuaded into right, they will be punished into it. My wife joins me in affectionate remembrance to thee & thine truly J. Robbins
